TO THE PEERAGE FOR 1844.

FEW readers have any conception of the rapidity with which works of this nature become incorrect, or of the amount of those changes which the lapse of a year or two renders necessary, among so numerous a body as this volume includes. Titles are earned and conferred ; judges resign and are replaced ; new bishoprics are founded, translations and consecrations occur ; while additions are continually being made to the Privy Council, and changes are unceasing both in Army and Navy ; to say nothing of the most prolific source of all, viz., the influence of births, deaths, and marriages occurring among seven or eight thousand individuals.

The death of one of the Nobility, moreover, involves a greater number of alterations than many persons would expect, until they remember, that, not only does another individual succeed to the family honours, but the relations of the new Peer acquire the titles of Lord, Lady, or Honourable. So that one death, or one new creation, may occasion from ten to twenty insertions. In order, however, to give the reader some view of these sources of change in the present edition, it may be stated, that amongst the titled classes which this volume includes, there have been 421 deaths, 156 marriages, and 203 new creations.

The numerous alterations involved by each birth, death, marriage, or creation, has rendered such a complete revision of the whole work necessary, that the present edition must really be considered as a new publication, though its continued accuracy will, it is hoped, still entitle it to the character of an old favorite.

INTRODUCTION.

THE merits of brevity, though never openly denied, are not always practically acknowledged; and some readers may be found, who suppose that a work of moderate size must be proportionably circumscribed in the amount of information which it conveys; that the weight of authority is on the side of large dimensions; and that obscurity, feebleness, and imperfection are the necessary consequences of curtailing redundancy or avoiding repetition. To the few who labour under such prejudices the Author of these pages has nothing to offer; while to the intelligent reader, no further preface or apology is necessary than a short statement of the purposes with which this work was undertaken, the ends which it has been found to answer, and the deficiency in our books of reference which it was constructed to supply.

Accounts of the titled classes had hitherto been confined to those who possessed hereditary distinctions, omitting any reference to nearly one thousand officers in the colonial, diplomatic, military, naval, and civil service of the state. Bishops, Judges, Privy Councillors, and the different classes of Knights, enjoy distinctions which command universal respect, discharge functions of the highest dignity, and are in the daily habit of performing services to the state, on which the authority of England abroad and her security at home are mainly dependent ; yet a complete collection of memoirs relating to those distinguished individuals remained unattempted till this publication made its first appearance. A work professing to include "all the titled classes" must, least of all omit these ; for it is presumed that the public would experience more disappointment in not finding the personal history of the living objects of their esteem, than pleasure in perusing dry genealogies which ascend beyond the Conquest, or long lists of such posterity of deceased peers as enjoy no distinctions, hereditary, personal, or official. In this volume it was therefore intended to include all the titled classes,—but their limits determined its boundary. The completion of this plan by the introduction of the Knights, Bishops, Privy Councillors, and Judges, occupied much time, and gave rise to considerable expense ; but the records of their honours—previously unpublished—had long demanded a place among the hereditary titles of which these distinctions are frequently the precursors : the Author of this work had therefore for some time entertained a design—first realized early in the year 1841—of uniting a Peerage, a Baronetage, and a Knightage.

In the first part of this volume, the following eight classes will be found collected into one general dictionary, in which details are given of their titles, parentage and descent, ages, marriages, professions, residences, public services, offices, church patronage, the occasions on which their titles were conferred, their works in literature, science, and the arts, with numerous historical and professional details.

1st. THE PEERS.—Accounts are contained in the following pages of the heads of all the noble families in the empire, whether belonging to the English, the Scottish, or the Irish peerage. These notices are characterized by frequent reference to the circumstances under which titles originated, to the revival of ancient dignities, or to any peculiarity in the course by which honours have descended, or are intended to descend.

2nd. THE PEERESSES.—In the particulars given of the head of every noble family, the married ladies and the dowagers connected with each are mentioned ; while, as regards peeresses in their own right, and dowagers belonging to extinct peerages, separate statements will be found in their proper alphabetical positions.

- 3rd. THE BISHOPS.—Copious notices are given, not merely of the Lords spiritual, but of all Bishops, English, Scottish, Irish, or Colonial, including particulars of the local extent of their jurisdiction, the annual values of their sees, the works they have written, the colleges at which they were educated, their births, marriages, and other family particulars.
- 4th. THE BARONETS.—Respecting this large division of the titled orders, the usual details will be found, compiled with great care, and presenting in every respect all the requisites of a complete Baronetage of England, Ireland, and Scotland.
- 5th. THE SCOTTISH JUDGES.—As the Lords of Session have, during the last three centuries, enjoyed a titular distinction, which is sometimes mistaken for a peerage, it has been thought right to include them, though doubtless many readers are aware that their title is merely one of courtesy, and that it ceases with their tenure of office.
- 6th. THE KNIGHTS BACHELOR comprise a large body of eminent lawyers, judges, artists, men of science and of letters. In compiling notices of this branch of the titled classes, especial care has been taken to state, in common with all other particulars, the occasions on which their honours were conferred, the offices they have held, and the services which each has performed.
- 7th. THE KNIGHTS OF THE BATH AND OF ST. MICHAEL AND ST. GEORGE.—In these Orders will be found the ministers who represent British interests at foreign courts, or the officers belonging to both branches of the service, whose achievements in various quarters of the world have procured the approbation of the crown and commanded the gratitude of the country.
- 8th. THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—A considerable proportion of this body are either Peers, Bishops, Baronets, or Knights ; but even such as are not included within these Orders are still men of great eminence in the state, and fill or have filled the highest offices in the public service. Enjoying the prefix of “RIGHT HONOURABLE,” they may be regarded as forming a portion of the titled classes ; and, considering the conspicuous position which they occupy, nothing that relates to them can be indifferent to the public. Details respecting all the Privy Council will therefore be found in Part I. under their individual heads.

Part II. of this volume contains several articles, amongst which are the following :—

- 1st. THE JUNIOR BRANCHES OF THE NOBILITY.—Upwards of four thousand persons enjoy titles by courtesy ; viz. the sons and daughters of living or deceased peers, and in some cases, their grandchildren or collateral relatives. In the same manner, as heads of families form one dictionary in the first part of the work, so the junior members of noble houses are alphabetically arranged in the second portion of the volume, with full particulars of their parentage, their ages, their marriages, their offices, and their professions. This series of accounts contains all who by courtesy enjoy the titles of “ Lord,” or “ Lady,” or “ Honourable ;” the public are here, therefore, presented with a comprehensive and accessible view of the younger branches of the nobility, neither parcelled out into families nor distributed into ranks, but collected into the only order which can prove permanently convenient, that of one general alphabetical arrangement.
- 2nd. THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.—Lists of all the Members of the various orders of Knighthood, arranged alphabetically, exhibiting the dates of their respective elections and distinguishing those who are included in Part I.
- 3rd. THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—A complete list of the Privy Councils of Great Britain and Ireland, exhibiting the sub-denominations and committees, and marking such of its members as enjoy no other title than that which they derive from their appointment to the Council Board.
- 4th. THE OBITUARY.—A list of the titled individuals who have died since the publication of the previous edition of this work.

Of the labour bestowed upon this history of the titled classes, no estimate can be formed by persons unaccustomed to literary drudgery ; nor probably could the most experienced compilers—otherwise than from actual observation—form an adequate notion of the toil with which its materials have been accumulated and corrected, classified and condensed. To say, as is the case, that it contains the statement of nearly seventy thousand facts, still affords no means of imagining the extent of research and inquiry requisite for such a compilation, or the liability to error necessarily inseparable from so large an accumulation of minute particulars, even though derived from records at the Heralds' College and other public offices, from works of high authority only to be found in public libraries, and from nearly two thousand manuscript communications which were forwarded by the subjects of these notices themselves. When in so many instances there existed a liability to error, it is hoped that the few inaccuracies which may possibly appear, will not be imputed to haste or negligence; and that the reader will continue to appreciate an account of the titled orders, compendious but not defective—forming a volume of convenient size and moderate price, easy of reference, and embracing, without diffuseness, that knowledge which the public naturally desire to obtain concerning the Aristocracy, and which the higher classes usually possess with respect to each other.

ABBREVIATIONS

ALPHABETICALLY ARRANGED.

The abbreviations used in this work have been constructed in such a manner that their meaning is at once perceptible without referring to the following list, and the initials adopted to designate the orders of knighthood are those in ordinary use; so that by abstaining from contractions as often as possible, and by using only those of palpable meaning, the list has been rendered short, and frequent reference to it made unnecessary. To provide for all difficulties, however, it has been thought advisable to include every abbreviation in the following catalogue.

PART II.

THE JUNIOR NOBILITY.

EVERY one in the habit of consulting Peerages is aware, that the arrangement hitherto adopted with regard to the issue of the Nobility, was to describe them under the heads of their respective families. If a reader sought any information, concerning this portion of the titled classes, and knew not to which of the 550 noble houses the subject of his enquiry belonged, he was condemned to the necessity of examining several sets of lists, in order to ascertain where the object of his search was to be found ; and having accomplished this, he had then to refer to that title, under which the required particulars were included. To avoid these inconveniences ; to supersede the use of indexes, and double references ; to produce an account of the titled classes that should be self-interpreting, clear, simple, and concise, the construction of this work was devised. The whole contents are concentrated into two dictionaries, the first consisting of the Heads of Families, and the second comprising in one general alphabetical arrangement all the Children and other titled relatives of the Peers. The following dictionary therefore includes, the sons and daughters of peers, the grand-children of peers, styled honourable, or enjoying any other title, the married daughters and the grand-daughters of peers, deriving no title from their husbands superior to that which they enjoy by birth, the collateral relatives of peers enjoying titles by birth, or under warrant, &c. Respecting these several classes, this portion of the work supplies all the details in which the public can feel any interest, namely, their parentage and descents, the dates of their births, the persons to whom and the time when married, the families with which they have become connected, the professions which they pursue, or the offices they hold.

OBITUARY.

THE following is an Alphabetical List of Titled Persons who have died since the publication of the previous edition of this work; and is therefore an Index to some of the changes and improvements which the lapse of time has effected in the pages of the present volume. OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

THE lists which have hitherto been published of the members of the various Orders of Knighthood are all arranged in such a manner, that the convenience of the compiler appears to have been more consulted than the interest of the reader. Some lists place the knights in the order of precedence, others chronologically, and others again adopt an alphabetical classification. In the two former arrangements, no name can be found unless its precedence or seniority be previously known; while in the latter it has not been the practice to give the reader any information respecting the period at which the order was in each instance conferred. Considerable labour has therefore been expended in the compilation of the following lists, in order to furnish the reader with complete information at the least expenditure of trouble on his part. The names in each Order and in each class are arranged according to a strict alphabetical classification, while opposite each name is given the year in which the particular individual received his Order of knighthood. The professional designations of admiral, general, colonel, captain, &c. have all been avoided, because the incessant changes consequent upon promotions would rapidly render this mode of describing individuals incorrect; the Christian names have therefore been adopted as the preferable mode of distinction

THE CABINET, THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE, AND THE BOARD OF TRADE.

From the council at large, three select bodies are formed, one called the "Cabinet," one the "Judicial Committee," and one the "Board of Trade." The first is entrusted with the executive authority of the crown; the second with the exercise of those functions which belong to the council as a court of justice; and the duties of the third are limited to objects connected with the commercial, manufacturing, and trading interests of the country.

COMMENCED IN 1832, AND PUBLISHED ANNUALLY.

THIS annual, which has now reached its twelfth year, was commenced in 1832, in order to supply the Public with that kind of information respecting their representatives in Parliament, which Peerages usually afford with regard to the Nobility. As a companion to visitors and members of both Houses, as an illustrative guide to the perusal of newspapers, and as a convenient political manual at all times, it has been found that this work—scrupulously preserved from the slightest influence of political bias—proves acceptable to men of all parties, and is favourably received in every quarter where public journals are read or politics an object of interest.

CONTENTS.

PART I.

THE SOVEREIGN, AND THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

THE QUEEN.

Members of the House of Lords, their political principles, ages, marriages, residences, offices, church patronage, &c.

Peers of Ireland and Scotland.

PART II.

EXPLANATION OF PARLIAMENTARY TERMS AND PROCEEDINGS.

It has frequently been observed, that many discussions and disputes arise on political questions, which a slight attention to the usages, phrases, forms, and technicalities of Parliament would prevent; and that many—otherwise well-informed persons—are singularly ignorant of those mere elements of Parliamentary knowledge, with which all who write or report for newspapers presume their readers to be familiar. In some degree to remedy this, and especially to give assistance to those who take their seats in the gallery of either House, for the purpose of hearing a debate, a series of brief notices have been prepared of parliamentary terms frequently occurring in the pages of this work, in newspapers, and in the proceedings of both Houses.

PART III.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A statistical account of the places returning members to parliament, including a statement of numbers polled at the contested elections, the population, assessed taxes, ten pound houses, registered electors, &c.

A biographical dictionary of the members of the House of Commons, exhibiting their parentage, ages, marriages, professions, offices, church patronage, political principles and pledges, the clubs to which they belong, their residences, family connexions, University honours, their literary works, &c. Clerks and officers of the House of Commons.
